In the course of many years experience as the principal of the Jews Free School, London, and also as a private tutor, I have observed, with regret, the insufficiency of our present system of religious education. To assist in the amelioration of that system has long been my most anxious wish. The children of our community are taught to read and translate the Hebrew Bible; but many of them are permitted to attain maturity uninformed in the fundamental principles of our Holy and Ancient Religion. I admit that many very learned works have been composed for the...
