Not illustrated. 1812 Excerpt: . . . him, by colour thereof, to absolve or reconcile any person, or to grant or promise to any person any such absolution or reconciliation, by any speech, preaching, teaching, writing, or any other open deed; or shall obtain from the Bishop of Rome, any manner of Bull, Writing, or Instrument, written or printed, containing any thing, matter or cause what soever; or shall publish, or by any means Chap. X. put in use any such Bull, Writing, or Instrument, ; he, his procurers, abettors and . s. counsellors to the fact and committing of the prohibiting all said offence, shall be adjudged guilty of High Treason. And any person concealing the offer, motion, or mention of such Writing or Instrument, and not disclosing it to some Privy Counsellor within six weeks, shall be guilty of Misprision of High Treason. This severe Statute, though possibly not impolitic in the troubled reign of Elizabeth, is surely at present preposterous. If, for example, inconvenience and impolicy of the Pope should think proper to grant a perpetual Concordat to the British Monarch--the person who shall procure any written or printed Declaration from him, or from any of his ministers, to that or any other effect, is liable, by this Statute, to be punished as a Traitor. No Treaty, or overture, can commence or subsist under such a prohibition. In 1794 and 1795, an Englishman, Clerk to the Neapolitan Embassy, ventured to apply to the Court of a unious. J. . . instance--....
