Excerpt: .A small church of Dutch Christians in Malacca was at this time without a pastor, and they invited Mr. Milne to occupy the vacant place. This he declined, on the ground that he was commissioned for another purpose; but he undertook to conduct divine service for their benefit once a week. For about a year no land was obtained for the erection of the meditated buildings; but at the beginning of 1816 Mr. Milne obtained a grant of land from the English Governor at Penang, subject to approval from the Dutch authorities. This was a considerable distance from the town, and not suitable for the purposes of the mission. It was therefore exchanged for a smaller piece near the city gates, a sum of about two hundred pounds being paid as a further recompense to the vendor. Thus was a site obtained in a most eligible...
